

The Renaissance Of The Southern African Large Telescope

Almost six years after its inauguration in 2005, the Southern African Large Telescope (SALT), the largest optical telescope in the Southern Hemisphere, was re-launched at a ceremony held in Sutherland in November 2011. The ceremony marked the next major milestone in the SALT project - the transition to full science operations, reflecting on how the project has matured from an engineering construction project to a fully operational scientific research endeavour...

Read more

Also in this edition

NRF Appoints New Director for SAO

Stellenbosch Takes a Closer Look Inside Our World

SAIAB Biologist Is Top Cited Author

SAIAB Saves Valuable Collections

SA's First Astronomy "Town" Meeting

South Africa – Germany Year of Science

Meet Beverley Damonse

Education and science have both played an important role in the life of Dr Beverley Damonse and have certainly helped steer the course of her career. Recently appointed as Group...

Read more

iThemba LABS: Cancer Therapy

The iThemba Laboratory for Accelerator-Based Science (LABS) in Cape Town provides particle beams for basic and applied research in the...

Read more

SA and Higgs Boson

Physicists around the world are excited about the discovery of a "Higgs-like boson" by the teams using the Large Hadron Collider (LHC) at CERN in Switzerland. An elementary particle....

Read more

Cheetah nutrition

Worldwide efforts are being made to protect cheetahs from population decline due to loss of available habitat, hunting, poisoning and competition with other...

Read more